

WILSON NOBLE – Biography

Wilson Noble is a Scottish Singer-Songwriter, Guitarist, Producer, Poet, and Loop Artist. His music is a blend of Alternative Folk, Acoustic-Roots, and Conscious Singer-Songwriter.

An Acoustic Singer-Songwriter at heart Wilson's core influences are Xavier Rudd, John Martyn, and Newton Faulkner. His guitar style, incorporating the extended use of altered tunings, lends inspiration from Australian roots artist John Butler and the late English folk guitarist John Renbourn.

Wilson, a definite character with a story to tell, brings his unique twist to the human condition, and living as a Scottish man. His music often covers socially conscious themes – like spirituality, environmentalism, humanity, and personal empowerment.

HUMAN, Wilson's fourth independent studio album, is his debut utilising looped arrangements in a studio environment. The album, scheduled for release in Summer 2019, was originally created and handed in as his final project for his Masters music degree in January, 2019. Produced by Wilson Noble, and covering the universal theme of 'Humanity', HUMAN is both a classic Wilson Noble album and a natural development of sound and complexity. The record comprising of welcoming new songs, culturally themed poetry, and uniquely atmospheric soundscapes is created to take the listener on a journey into the depth, subtlety and soulful artistry of this evolving musician.

"Raw emotion straight from the heart can be expected in Wilson's songs and live performances. His music lets the sun in and lifts the soul. Not to be missed." – Liam Ross

"Great concert last night, Wilson is just an extraordinary guitarist and entertained us with many of his own compositions and a couple of old favourites. His unique, quiet style and deep, soft lyrics held us spellbound throughout" – Dougie Simpson Author
